Seen & Heard Around Murray

Over a billion people today live on an annual income of $200 or less.

Their standard of living cannot be compared with that of the people of America.

We suspect that most of this billion lives in the east, areas in Africa and areas of South America.

Anyway, if you want to know what it would be like to live on $200 or less a year do the following:

1. Take out the furniture except a few old blankets, a kitchen table and one chair.

2. Take away all the clothing except for the oldest dress or suit for each member of the family and a shirt or blouse.

Fire Truck Funds Are Released

The Calloway County Farm Bureau has released over $250 for the Murray-Calloway County Civil Defense Rescue Squad. This amount included $100 to be placed in the current fire truck drive fund. Other clubs giving assistance recently are the Wadesboro Homemakers, $10, and the Magazine Club of Murray, also $10.

Several years ago the Farm Bureau and the Murray Rescue Squad joined in an endeavor to raise money for a county fire truck. Proceeds from the joint project were released last week to be used exclusively by the Rescue Squad.

The Murray Rescue Squad appreciates donations from local organizations and hopes that many groups now inactive during the summer months will consider a donation this fall.

The Rescue Squad has decided to proceed with the construction of a make-shift fire truck to serve the county this fall until the new fire truck can arrive. Anticipated arrival of a new truck runs as late as early 1969. The delay is by the fire truck apparatus manufacturers.

An old gas tank donated several years ago by Taylor Motors was brought from Midway to Murray free-of-charge by Gardner's Wrecker Service. The Rescue Squad appreciates the work by Elmo Gardner and his assistant Ed Knight in aiding the squad.

The big 800-gallon tank now will be outfitted with a pump and mounted on an old 24-ton truck being given by the Forestry Division. After the new fire engine arrives the old vehicle will be stationed in one of the county's rural communities. The latter piece of equipment will be close at hand in that community to be used at a fire until the big truck can arrive from Murray.

Anyone wishing to make donations may mail their contribution to Murray-Calloway County CD Rescue Squad, Box 312, Murray, Ky.

Dr. Williams Speaker For Rotary Club

Dr. John Williams of the Biology Department of Murray State University was the speaker yesterday at the regular meeting of the Murray Rotary Club.

Dr. Williams spoke on firearms, having been a former law enforcement officer and being presently a member of the National Rifle Association.

The speaker said that he is personally opposed to present legislation on registration of firearms because he feels a more intensive study of firearms is essential before legislation is passed.

He pointed out that the NRA has unjustly caught the brunt of the criticism by those in favor of gun registration because of its stand against registration. He said that the NRA is primarily an association dedicated to target shooting.

Dr. Williams said that there are two sides involved in the gun registration controversy, but these two do not want to compromise. He said that in his opinion some type of gun registration is in order, but that present proposals are not practical and invade the privacy of the citizen.

He pointed out that a gun could be obtained by nearly anyone who plans on violence. He spoke against the mail order gun business.

He reminded the club that at the beginning of World War II Sweden had a gun registration law and when the Germans invaded the nation, every weapon was confiscated by referring to the registration list.

Last week Judge Marlow Cook, Republican nominee for the United States Senate was heard. The club indicated that Miss Katherine Peeden, Democratic nominee will also be given an opportunity to speak to the club.

"For those who have intended to see this first play — but have had things to interfere with plans, I want to invite them to take advantage of this last weekend," he added.

lombile for the superintendent of the Murray Natural Gas System and one for the superintendent of the Water & Sewer System. Also equipment was purchased for the water system.

Parker Motors was the low bidder on the two cars for the superintendents. They bid on two 1968 Ford, four-door customs with automatic shift and tinted glass with power steering and brakes. The Parker bid was $3290.88 with the trade-in of the two 1965 Fords owned by the city.

Holcomb Chevrolet bid on two 1968 Bel Air, four door, automatic shift, tinted glass with all power for $3968.00 plus trade-in.

Taylor Motors answered the bid request, however declined to bid, saying that no more 1968 cars in this category were available.

Bids were also opened last night on the paving of city streets. One bid was apparently incorrect as though the bidder had misconstrued the bid request so all bids were held and new bids will be asked. The council gave authority to the Mayor and Street Committee headed by Prentice Lassiter, to open the bids and let the project to the low bidder.

Four bids were received on a new air compressor for the Murray Water & Sewer System, also a new auger used for boring under intersections to install water pipe.

Brandeis Machinery was the low bidder. This firm bid $4020 on the compressor and $1220 on the auger. Other bidders with the two bids listed in order were Wayne Supply, $4,850.00 and $830; Kentucky Machinery $4,415.90 on the compressor only; Central Supply, $6,200 and $1,517.00.

The council renewed the lease on the Municipal Parking Lot at a rental from the A. B. Beale estate at $165.00 per month. The parking lot is ten years old and the city breaks even on the expense and income from the lot.

Mayor Pro-Tem Vaughn said that it is felt that the parking lot is a service to the people of Murray and as long as the city can break even on this project that he felt it should be continued.

The lot is located on East Main Street and receives income from parking meters which are placed on it. It stands in the old location of the Beale residence.

Raymond Sims was changed from a temporary employee to a permanent employee of the City Street Department.

A request for additional street lights on Johnson Boulevard will be investigated.

TV CAMEOS: Hanna and Barbera

Huck Finn's TV Antics to Cost 100 G's Per

By MEL MEINER

HUCKLEBERRY FINN, who seldom had more than a niche to his name, will bust out on the TV screen (live and animated) this fall in all his freckled, fishing-pole glory—and it'll cost $100,000 per half hour to put together each episode of his adventures.

That makes Huck's antics just about the most costly in television—and it makes the whole thing quite an achievement, to undertake it, for Bill Hanna and Joe Barbera. Eleven years ago, they were out of business.

Bill and Joe were animated cartoonists and executives at MGM—Bill from Melrose, N.M., Joe from New York City—for 20 years ("Tom and Jerry" was their baby), when one morning they were told to discontinue production. "Twenty years of work ended suddenly with a single call," they say. "The soaring costs of animation had priced us out of the entertainment business, it seemed."

BUT—it turned out to be their biggest break. In July, 1957, the boys incorporated Hanna-Barbera Productions, started doing planned animation for TV. "You've noticed, of course, that pins" was a movie using the detail that wouldn't be visible three kids will be acting with anyway on the small screen—cartoon creations. Also to be and went after the Saturday seen briefly will be Ted Casam. kid audience with a bang, sidy, TV's "Lurch" of yesterday.

Nine and a half years later, day, who will play "Injun Joe," the detail that wouldn't be visible three kids will be acting with anyway on the small screen—cartoon creations. Also to be and went after the Saturday seen briefly will be Ted Casam. kid audience with a bang, sidy, TV's "Lurch" of yesterday.

"The New Adventures of Huckleberry Finn" is a 3-story, more than 500 H-B employ-$1,250,000 building near the end of the film, industrial movies and the San Fernando Valley. The layout is almost as famous as "The New Adventures of Huckleberry Finn," featuring three young ones named Michael Shes, U.S. Senate by Sen. Thomas H. (Huck), La Ann Haslam (Becky Kuchel) lauded the talented pair (Thatcher) and Kevin Schultze "having delighted not only (Tom Sawyer) is an off-shoot, children but also their elders."

In a way, the "Jack and the Beanstalk" special that H-B actors turn out 4,500 different products—Flintstone window shades to Yogi Bear bubble bath crystals—in co-operation with the studio.

"Huck Finn" will be shown in prime time by NBC, come September, and will take the three kids to Egypt for an encounter with a mummy, to India to recover the ruby eye of an idol and to a desert island where they find Gulliver's Lilliputians. There will be action, Bill and Joe promise, but no great violence—for which parents still shaken by the recent assassinations will be grateful.

"Huckleberry Hound" was the first H-B hit—it won an Emmy—and over Bill's and Joe's desks are pictures of Huck, shaking hands with them. "Thank you, Huck," is written on them. "It may sound nutty to be grateful to a mythical blue dog," the pair grin, "but believe us, we are."

Michael Shes (l.) will be the immortal Huckleberry Finn, with Lu Ann Haslam as Becky and Kevin Schultze as Tom Sawyer.

Vacuum Cleaner Catches Shrimp

COLLEGE STATION, Tex. (UPI) — A shrimp harvester that works like a vacuum cleaner and may replace the traditional shrimp net has been invented by four students from Texas A&M University.

The new machine, called "BOSH" because of its function, "bottom oriented shrimp harvester," will allow shrimpers to work 24 hours a day instead of only at night, a university official said. Shrimpers currently work only at night because that is the time shrimp feed.

Dr. C. A. Rodenberger, instructor of a systems engineering course in which the harvester was designed, said the invention is made of a steel alloy and is shaped like an old-fashioned vacuum cleaner. It has a series of tapered holes on its front edge to force a jet of water—produced by forward movement of the vehicle—onto the ocean floor, Rodenberger said.

"The agitation will cause shrimp to pop from the ocean floor into the water to be swept up by a 15-foot wide rubber-lipped mouth."

The shrimp are channeled into a bag-type receptacle on the back of the machine. Those too small to eat are filtered back into the ocean. The receptacle can be lifted to the surface for dumping while the trawler and BOSH are underway.

Research on the feeding and burrowing habits of shrimp will be required before final designs are drawn, Rodenberger said. With proper research and planning, BOSH should work best in daylight when all shrimp are burrowed, he said.

"It has been estimated that two shrimp are burrowed for every shrimp that is feeding during the night," Rodenberger explained.

THE FAMILY LAWYER

Wrong Medicine

Given a prescription for her arthritis, a woman took it to the corner drug store to be filled. But the druggist mixed a wrong ingredient into the medicine. As a result, the woman suffered a severe reaction—and later filed suit for damages.

"Don't blame me, blame the doctor," protested the druggist in court. "His writing on that prescription was so illegible it was hard to be sure what he meant. So I filled it according to my best judgment."

But the court held the druggist liable anyhow, blaming him for not checking with the doctor before going ahead.

By and large, pharmacists are held to a standard of care commensurate with the importance of their ancient profession. As one judge put it:

"People trust not merely their health but their lives to the knowledge, care and prudence of druggists."

For that reason, the pharmacist who is careless in filling a prescription is usually responsible for the consequences. There have been damage verdicts not only for wrong ingredients but also for incorrect proportions and for misleading directions.

On the other hand, even when a druggist does make a mistake, he is not liable if there is no causal connection between his mistake and the ultimate injury. Take this case:

A druggist sold a customer a powerful purgative, without properly labeling the bottle. The customer, well aware of what he had bought, mischievously slipped some into a friend's coffee.

For the unhappy consequences to the friend, the druggist was held blameless. The court pointed out that his faulty label had no connection with what happened, because the prankster would have done the same thing even if the label had been right.

Furthermore, a customer must show a reasonable regard for his own safety. In another "wrong medicine" case, the customer made his purchase from a young, inexperienced clerk while the regular pharmacist was out of the store.

Here the clerk, after bringing out a bottle, confessed that he didn't know what he was selling. Nevertheless the customer insisted the medicine must be what he wanted because it "smelled right."

A court ruled afterward that the customer himself was guilty of negligence, for buying medicine by using his nose instead of by using his head.

MEN'S WEAR

Would You Believe Printed Suit? Wild!

By WALTER LOGAN

NEW YORK (UPI) — Lily Pulitzer, the socialite who stirred up the jet set ladies in Palm Beach by turning out some of the wildest printed shifts in history, is now making men's wear history by turning out sports clothes in some of the wildest prints in history.

Her tropical-printed jackets in conservative styles and her wildly patterned jeans fill the windows of big Fifth Avenue stores in New York and will be seen at golf clubs and private parties all summer. She calls them "Men's Stuff."

She said she feels that prints will give men "... their big chance for a change if they've been dying to pitch their flannels into oblivion."

Prints from Mrs. Pulitzer—and from many other designers—have given men's summer wear a new dimension. Brilliant florals, paisleys, abstract swirls of color and even wood grain printed fabrics turn up in everything from hats to slacks, jackets to swimwear.

"Prints will soon appear in fall suits," according to designer John Weitz. "I've already begun to do them for leisure time. A print is the most potent expression of personal taste of the designer and will eventually be the strongest expression of personal choice on the consumer's part." His boutiques across the nation feature many prints for summer. Prints were dormant for five years in summer formal wear, but now a spirit of change is in the air. After Six, a pioneer in formal fashion, has some brocade prints and batik printed jackets which will make the summer circuit with ease.

Printed shirts also abound this summer, and among the best are the bold Indian paisley tunics designed by Michael Webb for Carlyle. The Indian print shows up as well in slacks and swimwear of all kinds.

Another favorite is the Beardsley-type pattern. John Jochin designed both fabric and key tunics designed by Michael Webb for Carlyle. The Indian print shows up as well in slacks and swimwear of all kinds.

Business or dress shirts are another category where prints are making headway. Fashion innovators like Oleg Cassini (who designs for Barry Boonshaft, Inc.) and Henry Grethel of Hathaway are looking to prints for the bold color that cannot be achieved through woven patterns. Weitz, too, in his designs for Excella, has turned to print. Some outstanding prints are Cassini's enlarged houndstooth and polka dot and Weitz' broad stripe.

Sporting News Says Drysdale Will Quit Pitching And Coach

ST. LOUIS (UPI) — The Sporting News said Thursday veteran pitcher Don Drysdale intends to "force his release" from the Los Angeles Dodgers in order to take the job of pitching coach with the San Diego Padres.

Drysdale said the report was "not true."

The Sporting News, citing an "unimpeachable source," said the 31-year-old hurler "plans to demand a salary of $200,000 from the Dodgers next season in an effort to force his release to the new San Diego club in the National League."

The newspaper, published here by C. C. Johnson Spink, said the information was obtained after Phil Collier disclosed in the San Diego Union that "Drysdale was ready to retire as a pitcher and hoped to start on a new career with the Padres."

"Reportedly, an intermediary as conveyed Drysdale's ambitions to San Diego's club officials," the Sporting News said. "Nothing to it."

Drysdale, reached on the West Coast, said, "It's not true. 'There's nothing at all to it,' he told UPI."

The Sporting News sources said Drysdale "would be a pitching coach for the Padres during the season at a salary of about $15,000 and then would move into the front office, probably in a public relations capacity the rest of the year for another $15,000."

Buzzie Bavasi, former general manager of the Dodgers and now president of the Padres, is a close friend of Drysdale.

"Major league rules against tampering prevent any direct dealing between Bavasi and Drysdale as long as Don is under contract to the Dodgers," the Sporting News reported.

Prefers Coaching
Collier wrote that Drysdale, who recently set major league records with six consecutive shutouts and 58 consecutive scoreless innings, "would rather be pitching coach for San Diego's new National League team next season than earn $100,000 playing for the Dodgers."

"Drysdale's early retirement as a pitcher would be no more surprising than teammate Sandy Koufax's decision to quit the Dodgers at age 30, two seasons ago," Collier said.

Gibson Lowers His ERA To 0.957 Despite A Sore Arm

BOB GIBSON

By JOE GERGEN
UPI Sports Writer
Bob Gibson's aching arm may yet be enshrined with Sandy Koufax' arthritic elbow in baseball's medical hall of fame.

Koufax established some of the most remarkable pitching feats in baseball annals despite the painful disease in his left elbow and Gibson, the whiplash right-hander of the St. Louis Cardinals, is zeroing in on at least one outstanding achievement, most arm and all.

Gibson breezed to his 11th straight victory and eighth shutout of the season Thursday night by beating the Philadelphia Phillies 5-0 on five hits and in the process lowered his earned run average to a minuscule 0.957.

The lowest recorded ERA in modern history was 0.90 set by Ferd Schupp of New York in 140 innings of the 1916 season and who worked 300 or more innings was 1.14 set by the great Walter Johnson of Washington in 1913. Gibson already has hurled 188 innings this season.

Phenomenal Record
"My arm ached before the game tonight," conceded Gibson who has allowed only two runs in a phenomenal stretch of 92 innings. "Usually I get that kind of ache in the sixth or seventh inning. Tonight, it came while I was still warming up in the bullpen."

Gibson, who hasn't lost since May 28, pitched his 12th straight complete game, struck out six to raise his season total to 145 and tied Luis Tiant of the Cleveland Indians for the major league lead in shutouts. His string of 11 successive victories, which boosted his record to 14-5, tied a team record set by Ted Wilks in 1944 and left him eight shy of the major league record for one season shared by T. J. Keefe and Rube Marquard, both of New York, in the dead-ball era.

"I'm tired again," said the 32-year-old Gibson who had two doubles, drew in a run and reached base in each of his four at bats. "It was kind of close on the night. Being on base didn't make that much difference. I get tired from pitching, not from running the bases."

The victory enabled the Cards to maintain their 12 1/2-game lead over the Atlanta Braves, who beat the New York Mets 4-2. The Cincinnati Reds edged the Pittsburgh Pirates 2-0 in the only other National League game and the Detroit Tigers whipped the Washington Senators 4-1 in an American League game halted by rain after 6 1/2 innings.

Tigers Win
Joe Sparrs allowed only one hit, a line single by Paul Casanova in the fourth inning and an unearned run in the first and Jim Northrup blasted his 14th and 15th homers as the Tigers' hiked their American League to 5 1/2 games over the idle Baltimore Orioles. The two teams start a three-game series tonight in Baltimore. Northrup's homers accounted for three runs in the game, which was delayed for an hour before being called.

Joe Torre's first home run in 11 games, a three-run blast which climaxed a four-run sixth, lifted the Braves over the Mets. All of Atlanta's runs were unearned as the result of Ed Charles' two-out error on Felix Millan's grounders.

Don Pavletich, who failed to hit safely against Pittsburgh all last season, stroked a run-scoring single during a two-run fourth inning as the Reds recorded their sixth straight win.

Royal Winners
NEW YORK (UPI) — Both present King Olav of Norway and King Constantine of Greece are Olympic medal winners at yachting.

Indoor Football
NEW YORK (UPI) — Fordham and Marquette will meet in an indoor football game at Convention Hall, Atlantic City, N.J., on Saturday, Nov. 23. It will be the first indoor football game ever played by both schools and only the second time Fordham and Marquette have met in football. Their first contest ended in a 13-all tie in Milwaukee in 1954.

Murray's Pony League All-Stars will play Paducah in the district tournament tonight at 6:15, after defeating Madisonville last night 14-1. Members on the team are, from left to right first row, George Landolt, Rodney Stallens, Allan Adams, Charlie Gibbs, David Hughes, Mitch Ward, Brown Crouch, Montie Cathey, Bubba Hughes, and Allan Camp; back row, Coach Lynn Sizemore, Manager Jack Ward, Chris Clepton, Dan Thompson, Charles Robinson, Porter McClellan, Johnny Rayburn, Dennis Lane, Dale Alexander, Johnny Williams, and Ronald Crouch, President of the league.

FUNERAL SERVICES
NORMAL, Ill. (UPI) — Funeral services will be held Saturday in Bloomington, Ill., for Lander Van Gundy, secretary of the Hambletonian Society and treasurer of the Grand Circuit in harness racing.

Van Gundy, 59, died Thursday. He was a key figure in bringing the Hambletonian Classic to Du Quoin, Ill.

TAKES FIRST STEP

Miss Sandra Lynn Barrett Pledges Vows With Van A. Faith At the Altona Church

The wedding of Miss Sandra Lynn Barrett and Van A. Faith was solemnized Friday evening June 21, at Altona Baptist Church. Rev. Bill Cox performed the double-ring ceremony.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Woodrow Barrett of Calvert City, formerly of Murray Route One, and the groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Woodrow Faith of Gilbertsville.

A program of nuptial music was presented by the Smith Brothers Quartet, and Miss Carolyn Triplett, organist.

The vows were exchanged before an arch at the altar decorated with ivy and orange blossoms. Palms, fern, and beauty baskets of white roses were on either side of the arch. The candelabra were each designed with ivy and a white bow. Family pews were marked with white satin and had a boxwood garland.

Preceding the ceremony, the candles were lighted and the white carpet rolled by Gerald Barrett and Jerry Barrett, brothers of the bride.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a semi-fitted, A-line gown of peau de soie with a lace bodice and three-quarter length bell-shaped sleeves of scalloped lace. The chapel-length train was attached at the back with pleats. The train was designed of lace and lined with peau de soie. She wore an elbow-length veil of silk illusion attached by a headpiece of sequins and pearls. She carried a cascade bouquet of white carnations with step-motis and white streamers tied in love knots.

Miss Rhonda Willie attended the bride as maid of honor. She wore a full-length gown of mint green brocade. She carried a colonial bouquet of white carnations tinted mint green. Her headpiece was a mint green rose and matching illusion.

Mrs. Glynda Parker, Mrs. Charlene Smith, Mrs. Shirley Smith, sisters of the bride, Mrs. Sue Newton and Miss Sandra

Barrett, cousin of the bride, attended her as bridesmaids. They wore full-length yellow brocade gowns identical to the maid of honor. They carried colonial bouquets of white carnations tinted with yellow. Their headpieces were bands designed with the dress material and matching illusion.

Miss Sherry Faith, niece of the groom, was flower girl. She wore a full-length gown identical to the bridesmaids. Her headpiece was designed of yellow baby roses with matching illusion. She carried a lace-trimmed basket with yellow and white streamers and dropped rose petals preceding the bride.

George Faith, brother of the groom, served as best man. Groomsman were Jerry Parker, Howard Beth, and Lonnie Barrett, brother of the bride. Ushers were Gerald Barrett and Jerry Barrett, brothers of the bride. Craig Faith, nephew of the groom, served as ringbearer.

For her daughter's wedding, Mrs. Barrett selected a two-piece ensemble of hot pink satin covered with lace designed by Elegant Miss of California.

Her accessories were white and a corsage of white carnations tinted with mint green was pinned at her shoulder.

Mrs. Faith chose for her son's wedding an off-white dress with mint green accessories. A corsage of white carnations tinted with mint green was pinned at her shoulder.

Miss Susan Charlton kept the guest register. Immediately following the ceremony, a reception was held at Union Hall. Miss Linda Barrett, Mrs. Janice Barrett, Mrs. Beverly Barrett, sisters-in-law of the bride, and Mrs. Marilyn Faith, sister-in-law of the groom served at the table.

After the reception, the couple left for a short wedding trip. For traveling, the bride wore a yellow dress designed by Betty Barclay, with white accessories.

To Tell or Not to Tell: That's the Question

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: If you knew positively that your sister's husband had been keeping another woman for 7 or 8 years, would you take on the sad task of telling your sister?

Many other people know it, and she is bound to find out someday, and then she will know that we knew it, too.

HER SISTERS

DEAR SISTERS: There are two schools of thought. To tell and not to tell.

I belong to the "not to tell" school. There are exceptions, of course. In most cases the wife usually knows, but she is putting on a brave face for reasons known only to her.

Allow her her pride and keep quiet. And should she in time admit that she knows, be "big" and don't chime in with those who would say, "I knew it all along."

DEAR ABBY: I am a 15-year-old girl and I am waiting for a guy who is overseas in the service. (Let's call him Morey.) I don't have an engagement ring or anything like that, but I promised Morey I would wait for him, so that's what I am doing.

Well, there is a guy Morey used to run around with [let's call him Herman], and Herman comes over and takes me out just to keep me from going nuts. Anyway, it started out that way. Now, Herman tells me he thinks he is in love with me, altho I told Herman from the start that I was waiting for Morey and I think of him only as a friend.

Don't get me wrong, Herman hasn't tried anything, but he is starting to like me too much for his own good. I don't want to quit seeing Herman because he's really a nice guy and a girl could go nuts sitting home all the time writing letters.

My mother says I shouldn't be going out at all, but I can't see any harm in it as long as I don't lead anybody on. What do you think? I don't want to hurt Herman.

WAITING FOR MOREY.

DEAR WAITING: Maybe you think of Herman as "only a friend," but he obviously has other ideas about you. I don't know how you figure you are "waiting" for Morey, when you are going with Herman. If a girl "waits" for a fellow, she waits alone without "going nuts." Don't worry about hurting Herman. I have an idea he can take care of himself.

DEAR ABBY: You said, "There is one type of man I have never known to be strong, reliable and trustworthy, and he is the man who would ask for a loan of money from the woman he loves."

Are there NO exceptions? BEEN THERE

DEAR BEEN: Yes. A husband and wife many years married, and united by common interests, may become so one in purpose and thought that a common purse would be as natural to them as a common bed or dinner table. But before marriage, or immediately after, the man who begins to ask a woman for the use of her purse shows himself to be lacking more than money.

CONFIDENTIAL TO ARNIE: There are two times in a man's life when he shouldn't gamble. [1] When he can't afford it. [2] When he can.

Everybody has a problem. What's yours? For a personal reply write to Abby, Box 69700, Los Angeles, Cal., 90069 and enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

HATE TO WRITE LETTERS? SEND 31 TO ABBY, BOX 69700, LOS ANGELES, CAL., 90069, FOR ABBY'S BOOKLET, "HOW TO WRITE LETTERS FOR ALL OCCASIONS."

Fishing Tips

Did you know that you can catch fish with bumble bees? I didn't either, but a fellow from Michigan and Tennessee by the name of Red Bradford passed this tip along to me.

Go out and catch several bees in a glass jar, (this is the hard part, because I know that I would get stung). Secure the jar to a line and let it down into the water. You then fish around and near the jar. The sound of the bees buzzing is supposed to attract the fish, and while they are seeing what is going on they will bite at your hook.

I have never tried this but Red claims that it works like a charm, and he has been fishing for several years. Anyway, it should be worth a try.

Now about the part of Red being from Michigan and Tennessee, both. He was born in Tennessee, lived in Detroit for several years, and moved back to Tennessee last week.

Fishing Kentucky Lake's drop offs produced this limit catch of bass for Milton Taylor of Madison. Taylor was casting Calvin Pearce's Streak-O-Lean worm to make the catch. A 4 1/2 pounder is tops on the catch.

Buddy Tubbs of Nashville holds the 8 1/2 pound largemouth bass his father, Granville Tubbs caught a few weeks back on Kentucky Lake. Tubbs made the catch on a Chugger Spook surface lure fishing Bass Bay.

THIS STRING of striped bass was caught by Joe Allen, 205 Park Ave. (above), and his fishing partner, Dr. Joe D. Windrey, 198 Park Ave. They were caught above the dam at Kentucky Dam Wednesday night, June 12.

CHAPTER 20

HAD Otto Winter anticipated every move I was going to make? Had he never meant us to be married properly at all, not even in the church at Maaneborg?

"So? Is it correct?" Herre Frolich was asking anxiously. "No," I said. "It seems my husband was anxious not to be recognized. He is very modest. He refuses to use his title, too. He is Count Otto Winter of Maaneborg. Perhaps you have heard of him?"

Herre Frolich's light blue eyes seemed to grow more prominent in his surprise. Then, in a very curious way, he became cool and aloof, as if, at all once, I was a complete stranger.

"Ja," he said briefly. "I have." He slammed the register shut. "Then if madam doesn't require a room—"

"And why would Count Otto Winter not have been a welcome guest in your hotel?" I asked.

Herre Frolich showed no surprise at my question, but was not to be drawn.

"That you must ask him yourself, madam."

And a fine chance I had of being answered, I thought. I puzzled about this new development as I warily walked off to catch the bus. Had Otto used a false name, not because he wanted to hide his identity, but because he must hide his own?

Herre Frolich would be about the same age as Otto, or a little older. Did he remember some scandal about Otto? It seemed that I was a little likely to find that out as I was to sort out my own affairs.

On the half-hour bus ride back to Copenhagen, I was near to giving up. As soon as I found me some money, I would fly to London. I would put all this out of my mind.

I walked wearily into the Hotel d'Angleterre, thinking of nothing but a hot bath, and some supper in my room. The clerk at the desk, handing me my key, said that a gentleman had been telephoning. He hadn't left a name. He said that he would call again.

Otto, I thought with distaste. He was curious about what I had been doing.

I walked across the elegant foyer of the hotel toward the lift. I realized clearly for the first time the disaster that had happened to me.

The telephone beside me buzzed, wrenching me out of my self-absorption.

I automatically picked it up, then wished I hadn't as the voice of the clerk said, "A call for you," and immediately the other voice came. "Is that you, Louise? This is Erik Winter."

"Erik," I said faintly. "How did you know I was here?"

"My mother telephoned me from Maaneborg. She said you had left, and they were a little anxious about you, as you were still not very strong for traveling."

"I am perfectly strong for traveling, thank you."

"So she asked me to see you in Copenhagen," Erik went on calmly. "Perhaps we could have dinner this evening?"

"Could I trust another Winter?"

"Wash your face and I will meet you downstairs in thirty minutes."

"Before I could refuse, he had hung up."

"Now, Louise, my mother said you intended going to Drago today. Did you?"

"Yes, I did."

"This is where you say Otto married you."

"This is where Otto married me."

"I'm sorry. I didn't mean to put it like that. I wasn't doubting you."

"But you were. You still are. You didn't believe my story any more than anyone else did."

"It was a strange story," Erik said. "You must admit that. And since you had had such a bad knock on the head, we could surely be forgiven for being a little surprised by it. After all, why didn't you tell it when you were in full possession of your senses?"

"It was a secret. I was respecting Otto's wishes. Now I no longer have to do that."

"It didn't occur to you to distrust Otto?"

"Why should it? He had been courting me pretty assiduously since we met in Majorca."

"An old-fashioned word we use in England."

"It means serious intentions."

His voice was gently humorous, and I thought he was laughing at me. I said shortly, "I am neither naive nor a prude. It just happens I wanted a husband, not a lover. And Otto made it pretty clear he wanted a wife. I had to follow the law and be a resident here for six weeks, and at the end of that time we found ourselves in Drago, and Otto simply didn't want to wait any longer. Neither did I. So Otto was clever enough to find a parson, a sognepraest, as you call him, who would marry us privately, and there it was."

He just asked if I hadn't been surprised that Otto could find a parson so quickly.

"I didn't think about it. Drago is a small place. I suppose anyone could tell him where to find one."

"But today it wasn't so easy?"

"How did you know?"

"Well, for one thing, you had to wear dark glasses to hide your eyes which were not full of triumph. Mind you, you're foolish to waste tears on Otto, who is a traitor, anyway."

"You mean trickster."

"Whichever word. Neither is pleasant."

"The man in the hotel at Drago looked just as you do when he talked about Otto. I asked him if he didn't recognize the name Count Otto Winter, and he became furtive. Why?"

"Well, perhaps my brother doesn't endear himself. You know that already. He had found someone to pretend to be a sognepraest, to pretend to sign a marriage certificate. Doesn't that prove his bad character?"

"But why did he do it?"

"What happened after this strange marriage ceremony? You went to the Kongelige Hotel? Did Otto sign his own name in the hotel register?"

"You know that, too," I said. "Of course he didn't. But why was he so secretive?"

"I expect you had kept him waiting too long," Erik said in a factual voice.

"Assuming that ceremony at Drago really was a fake, do you think that Otto genuinely intended to marry me at Maaneborg? Before the accident happened, that is."

"It seemed so. I don't know."

Erik filled my wine glass once too often, for when we got ready to leave the restaurant, everything swam a little, the colored lights threaded like a necklace around the hoary tree trunks, the golden cascade of the fountains, the faces of the people pressing past. The balloon seller, I noticed, had had a successful evening. He had a bare dozen of his airy treasures left. He thrust them toward Erik and me as we came down the steps of the restaurant, urging us, in a hoarse, slightly drunken voice to buy one. Erik took my arm firmly, and walked me past the too-eager vendor.

For a moment we stared at one another. My brain, muddled with weariness and too much wine, struggled with a vague signal of alarm.

Louise receives an ominous phone call.

Ship-Shape Island Is Rome Landmark

ROME (UPI)—This ancient city is home for so many ancient marvels, so why not one of the world's first man-made islands?

The Isola Tiberina is the Tiber river's only island in Rome, and historians believe it was formed from silt that collected when ancient Etruscans dumped broken pots used for shipping grain.

One theory is that the Romans decided to build their city here in the 8th century B.C. because the island made it easier to bridge the river.

Not much was done with the Isola Tiberina until the 3rd century B.C., when a great plague swept Rome, leaving thousands dead. The Romans prayed to the Greek god of medicine, Aesculapius, who was said to have reincarnated himself as a serpent which was found there as the plague abated in 291 B.C.

The grateful Romans adopted him as their own god of medicine and built a temple to him on the island, which has been connected with the medical arts ever since.

A pilgrims' hospital was built there in the Middle Ages and now it is the home of the Fatebenefratelli ("Brothers of Good Works") Hospital.

In the 1st century B.C., the Romans built the Ponte Fabricius from the east bank of the Tiber to the island. The oldest bridge in Rome, it is still visible above the water as a supporting arch.

They built the Ponte Cestio from the west bank using the same method, but it has been reconstructed and reinforced since ancient times.

The Romans sculpted the island into the shape of a ship with a prow pointing north. This was to honor Aesculapius and the ship that brought him to Rome.

Sick persons were brought to his temple in hopes of seeing the god in their dreams and hearing him prescribe a cure.

Today the island retains its ship-like shape and there is still a sculpture of a serpent on the wall that forms part of the prow. Besides the hospital, there is a church, a pharmacy, a mattress shop, a bar and a restaurant.

There are also a few apartments ranging from run-down places to renovated apartments with expensive furnishings and high rents.

Except for rush hours when cars rumble over the 2,000-year-old bridges, the island is quiet now as it must have been in Roman times and the Middle Ages when the sick came to be cured—as they still do today.

Almost 80 per cent of Texas natural gas comes from gas wells, the rest from oil wells.

Only 3.5 per cent of Chile's 9 million people are pure Indian, according to official statistics.

BOATING

By JACK WOLISTON

NEW YORK (UPI) — The British report a new zest in boating and boatbuilding in that country stemming from a number of recent feats by British yachtsmen.

These British triumphs include two solo, world-circling voyages in sailing craft by Francis Chichester and Alec Rose, both of whom later were honored with knighthood, and a victory by Geoffrey Williams in record time in the 1968 single-handed trans-Atlantic race.

According to a word from London, this surge of enthusiasm in pleasure boating will be reflected in the British exhibits this year at the Marine Trades Exhibition in Chicago, Sept. 19-22.

New boats, new ideas to improve established craft and new equipment of every kind will be displayed by some 17 British firms at the show, which is a trade-only exhibit, closed to the public, and presents the first mass unveiling of new industry products and services that will be available in 1969.

Among the British products that will interest Americans who like to sail but like power too is a dual purpose cruiser which the manufacturer claims is equally at home under sail or under power with the masts removed.

Designed by Ian Hannay, former Olympic helmsman and known as a G-class, the 25½ foot fiberglass craft has two cabins, each with two berths, a head, galley and open cockpit, and boasts such refinements as an oil-fired range and oil-fired central heating.

Conversion from one form to the other is said to take little time. The mast, which can be fitted into a tabernacle if required, can be removed quickly and all rigging cleared to turn the boat into a motor cruiser.

Bermudan or Gunter rigs are available and power is provided by an inboard Waterman diesel engine. Under power, the craft will turn within 40 feet and steering can be either by tiller or wheel.

Another new British product that will be shown for the first time in the United States at Chicago is a Beaufort heel boat which is claimed to be a new approach to inflatable boats.

The nine-foot boat, unlike conventional inflatable boats, has a built-in fiberglass door which eliminates loose floorboards and allows the boat to be folded into one complete package. Skegs are molded into the fiberglass bottom to give additional directional stability and protection when beaching.

A high-speed, general purpose runabout, it is said to be equally suitable as a ski boat, a safety or club rescue boat or as a yacht tender. The manufacturer says speeds in excess of 40 miles per hour are possible and the boat is capable of planing with four or five people aboard.

The company will also show a mini-heel boat—6½ feet — which has a built-in transom with room for two adults and two children and can be used with oars or outboard engine. Weighing less than 30 pounds, it can be rolled up and stowed in a kit bag.

While it won't be launched until the 1970 season, the British are building a 71-foot fiberglass yacht which they say is expected to be by far the world's largest to go into series production.

The 27½-ton, ketch-rigged Ocean 71 will have a beam of 17 feet and an 8-foot draft. It will be fitted with a 100 horsepower diesel engine.

The price tag—$156,000 at the factory.

NOT AT EASE — This photo made by a fellow soldier shows Italian Pvt. Luciano Abbasso tied to a tree in Rome as punishment for being late in returning a special uniform he wore in a military parade. Mounted artillery Capt. Antonio Granata, who allegedly inflicted the punishment, was arrested and charged with abuse of authority by military authorities. (Cablephoto)

"COME

Let us go into the house of the Lord"

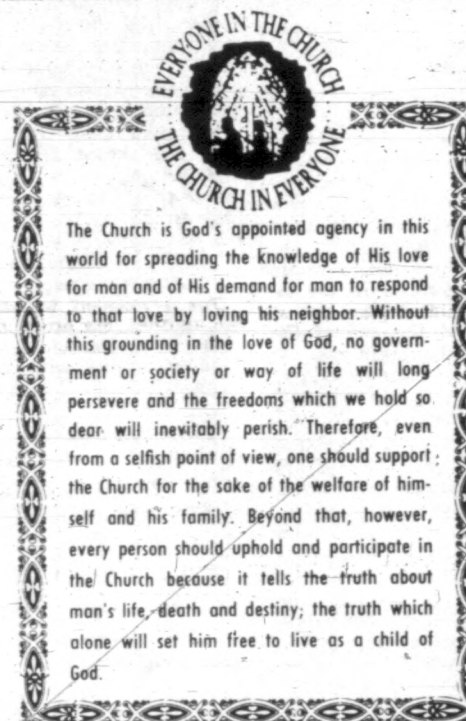

Sometimes the desire to run out the door and chuck it all is overpowering when we are confronted with the mess of an after-dinner table!

Sometimes, insight lets us see that our lives are quite a mess too. In fact, things seem such a jumble, that our reaction to this truth, if acknowledged, is, "What's the use?"

Well, of course, the only thing to do with the dishes is to take them to the sink, put them in hot water, and wash them with a good cleansing agent until they shine.

Less obvious, perhaps, is what to do with a messed-up life. We invite you to seek an answer in church this week. You are sure to find there the Power who will help you with your problems, a power who cares immeasurably for your soul.

"Casting all your care upon him, for he careth for you." I Peter 5:7

The Church is God's appointed agency in this world for spreading the knowledge of His love for man and of His demand for man to respond to that love by loving his neighbor. Without this grounding in the love of God, no government or society or way of life will long persevere and the freedoms which we hold so dear will inevitably perish. Therefore, even from a selfish point of view, one should support the Church for the sake of the welfare of himself and his family. Beyond that, however, every person should uphold and participate in the Church because it tells the truth about man's life, death and destiny; the truth which alone will set him free to live as a child of God.

HOW DID the hole get in this tree? Who lives in it? Answers are in "Once There Was A Tree" an absorbing book.

A YOUNGSTER makes a fascinating discovery! The filmy tents belong to undesirable tree residents—tent caterpillars.

Age of Discovery

Books That Explain
The Wonders Of Nature

By JOAN O'SULLIVAN

YOU ONLY remember how much you've forgotten when a four- or five-year-old faces up to you with a simple but answerable question about nature. It leaves you stumped and reminds you, too, that the outdoor world is fascinating to a child, for childhood is the age of discovery.

There's so much to see, to question and to understand. Even the simplest things seem extraordinarily strange and exciting to a child. Every day is a quest for knowledge, bringing with it a flood of "why" and "how" queries.

How should parents handle this curious, questioning stage of a child's life?

By encouraging the very young child to experience his environment esthetically, as well as intellectually, says science teacher Phyllis Busch, "with his heart" as well as with his mind.

This is the approach Mrs. Busch takes in two exceptionally good books she has written for the four-to-eight age group.

Both are illustrated with magnificent photographs by Arline Strong, several of which are reproduced here.

My favorite of the two, "Once There Was A Tree" is a beautifully told and fascinating story of how a living tree becomes a log. Children are enchanted with the cast of characters, the living things —insects, birds, animals and plants—that make the tree, and then the log their home.

When the story ends, the tree is no more, for the log has crumbled and become part of the soil, enriching the fertile ground in which new seeds can thrive and grow.

This, for young readers, makes a happy ending because the author has skillfully spun a true nature story of the tree, a home for plants and animals that is useful from the beginning to the end of its life and "has company all the time."

"Lions in the Grass," another nature book by this talented team is about the dandelion but is really the story of all green plants, explaining how seeds travel, grow and manufacture their own food. Again, stunning photographs by Arline Strong lend impact to the text and catch and hold a child's eye and interest.

Both books are part of a Discovering Nature Series from World Publishing Company ($4.50 each) and are especially recommended because their storybook approach keeps children spellbound.

For older youngsters, "Beginning Knowledge Books" (Rutledge Books Macmillan, $1.95 each) provide many of the answers to questions children ask.

The series includes these tities: "Butterflies," "Rocks and Gems," "Bees and Wasps," "Turtles," "Snakes." Color illustrations and simple words enable even beginning readers to understand the text with ease.

These are just some of the many excellent books available to explain the wonderful world of nature to children. They also help parents stamp out questions to come up with the right answers.

Dress Sizes Aim to Flatter

NEW YORK (UPI) — That size 10 dress, like the woman who wears it, is no longer what it used to be—it's bigger.

Dress makers, working on the theory that flattery goes a long way with a woman, are sticking smaller size labels on larger dresses, reports the Health Insurance Institute.

The proof is in last year's patterns. While ready-to-wear sizes went down, pattern sizes remained the same for many years.

And a woman who thought she wore a size 10 dress usually found she had to buy a size 12 pattern. Now pattern sizes are following ready-to-wear's small sizes.

As sizes shrank, however, women continued to grow. Today's American woman is bigger and busier than any generation before her. Average Miss or Mrs. America 1968 is five feet four and a half inches tall, weighs 126 pounds, and measures 35½-26-36½. Compare that with her turn-of-the-century counterpart, a five-foot-two, 114-pound shortie, with measurements of 33-24-36.

Modern women eat better all their lives than their grandmothers did, and they take better care of their figures. But as dress manufacturers worked at standardizing sizes for the new woman, they worked toward making those sizes smaller, too.

As a result, while every day in every way women grow bigger and bigger, dress sizes become smaller.

Cool Off

Cool off with apple-tomato frost, a refreshing appetizer. Soften 2 teaspoons of unfat-tened gelatin in ¼ cup of tomato juice. Dissolve over hot water. Add 1 cup of apple juice, ¼ cup of tomato juice, 1 teaspoon each of sugar and salt, ½ teaspoon each of pepper and celery salt, 2 teaspoons of onion juice and several dashes of bottled red pepper sauce. Mix well. Pour into refrigerator tray. Freeze until mushy. Beat mixture until smooth. Return to tray and freeze until firm. To serve, spoon into chilled sherbet glasses. Garnish with a sprig of parsley or watercress. Makes 4 to 6 servings.

CENTENNIAL SCRAPBOOK Looking Back to 1868

49-D Harvester crews had exhausting work in midsummer sun lessened further by an invention in 1868: a wire-binding reaper.

Until the 19th century, the method of binding grain was about as crude as the means of cutting grain, i.e., with sickle or scythe. A wisp of grain was twisted and tied around a bundle. The bundles were stacked together as sheaves. A simple sheaf binder was string strained around the sheaf by means of a notched stick. The band was two cords knotted together, forming a loop.

Naturally, many experiments were made to eliminate this hand labor after mechanical reapers appeared. A straw braid twister was patented in 1857; a combination gleaner and binder in 1862; a self-tripping cord knoter in 1867 and then, a year later, the wire-binding reaper.

Relatively inexpensive use of wire in farming had been facilitated by the American iron and steel industry advances in wire-drawing that provided quantities of materials for telegraph and cable systems, hoop-skirt frames, cotton baling.

Originally all wire was drawn, straightened, spliced and wound by hand. One after another, inventors devised machines to simplify wire-making.

The wire-binder was not the ultimate advancement. Cordage manufacturers promptly improved twine for sheaves.

There were to be twice as many different makes of American binders as British binders sold in Europe a decade after 1868. The manufacturers were winners in the field tests staged in conjunction with the Paris Exposition of 1878.

Synthetic Food

ANN ARBOR, Mich. (UPI) — A new synthetic food, designed as a dietary supplement for underfed people around the world, has been developed by scientists at the University of Michigan.

The food, called the Batina seed, is composed of cereal flour such as oats, barley and corn, toasted legume flours, wheat germ, dehydrated yeast and vitamin and mineral supplements.

Scientists estimate that most nations of the world could produce the food using only local food sources at a minimal cost. When raw, the seed can be cooked in water to produce a gel desirable in many rice dishes. It can also be toasted with a variety of plentiful but low vitamin foods to produce a balanced meal.

Tanning Tip
NEW YORK (UPI) — First exposure to summer sun should not last more than 15 minutes, according to first aid experts. Increase exposure daily to acquire a painless tan, avoid skin blistering. Protect eyes with tinted glasses while tanning. If you wish to avoid marks on temple from sunglasses, cover eyes with large cosmetic puffs instead. Should you sunburn, apply antiseptic first aid cream immediately to affected area to relieve pain, reduce blistering.

Follow the Leader At an Army Base

FT. LEWIS, Wash. (UPI) — When the men of the 2nd Howitzer Battalion of the 37th Artillery arrived here from West Germany, soldiers of the 212th Field Artillery Headquarters were assigned to act as guides.

Unfortunately, the guides had been at this huge military base only a short time themselves. So, members of the 18th Artillery, who had been at the base eight weeks were sent out to guide the guides. But that didn't work either.

Finally, Troop Command Headquarters dispatched a truckload of personnel to direct the entire operation. So, as the sun sank slowly in the west, the Troop Command was leading the 18th which was leading the 212th which was leading the 37th.

Lindberg Study
SEATTLE (UPI) — The physical effects of working in an atmosphere containing high pressure oxygen and other gases will be studied here in a project headed by Jon Lindberg, oceanographic engineer and deep-sea diver.

Lindberg is the son of famed flyer Charles Lindberg. The study will be carried out under the auspices of the Virginia Mason Research Center.

Income Tax Questions and Answers

Q — I got a letter from the regional service center asking me for information. Should I send it back to this center?

A — Yes, unless the letter requesting the information indicates you should send it elsewhere. Usually a return envelope is enclosed for your convenience.

To assure prompt handling, put your social security number on your reply and also return the letter you received.

Q — Do you have to be a doctor or a lawyer to set up your own retirement plan?

A — No, most persons in business for themselves can take advantage of the tax provisions allowing self-employed individuals to contribute to a personal retirement plan. This includes people who have their own business and also those who have income from part-time self-employment which is in addition to their regular job.

Details on these plans are contained in IRS Document No. 5502, "Retirement Plans for Self-Employed Individuals." Send a post card to your IRS district office to obtain a free copy.

Q — I put in my refund claim back in April. When can I expect my check?

A — The refund should arrive some time after the first of June. Some returns filed at the deadline may not be processed completely till the end of June, however. Incomplete returns and those with errors take longer to process.

Q — I'm having someone come in once a week to take care of my lawn and shrubbery. Will his wages be subject to income or social security tax withholding?

A — If you pay cash wages of $50 or more during a calendar quarter then you should report social security taxes for him. Use Form 942 to make the quarterly reports and payments. You do not have to withhold income-tax on wages paid to gardeners and other household employees.

Q — Do you have any booklet that outlines what a taxpayer can do if he disagrees with the results of an audit of his return?

A — Yes, the appeal procedures available to taxpayers are explained in IRS Document No. 5202, "If Your Return is Examined." Send a post card to your IRS district office to obtain a free copy.

Leave one pair of shoes for the head of the family.

3. Empty the cupboards, except for a small bag of flour, some sugar and salt, a few mouldy potatoes, a handful of onions and a dish of fried beans.

4. Dismantle the bathroom, shut off the water, remove the electric wiring.

5. Take away the house itself, and move the family into a toolshed.

6. Cancel all subscriptions to newspapers and magazines and book clubs. (This is no great loss as the family is now illiterate.)

7. Move the nearest clinic or hospital ten miles away and put a midwife in charge instead of a doctor.

8. Throw out the bankbooks, stock certificates, pension plans and insurance policies, and leave the family a cash hoard of $5.

9. Give the head of the family three-tenant acres to cultivate. On this he can raise $300 in cash crops, of which one-third will go to the landlord and one-tenth to the local money lender.

10. Lop off 25 to 30 years of life expectancy for every member of the family.

It is difficult for us to understand a life like this, but about one-third of the people in the world live like this.

Cook Bookery

Interesting New Editions For The Collector

By JOAN O'SULLIVAN

WHY DOES A woman need more than one cookbook? Because each volume adds something — something interesting — to her recipe repertoire.

For collectors who can never have too many, here's news of some recently published cookbooks:

● Foods Of The World (Time Life Books, $4.95 each): Thus far three of this ambitious multi-volume series are in print. They deal with the cooking of Provincial France, Scandinavia and Italy.

Each volume comes with a spiral-bound duplicate for kitchen use and each contains a history of the country's cuisine, gives fascinating details on the origin of dishes and is magnificently illustrated.

Great food names, including Michael Fields, Julia Childs and James Beard, are contributing to the series, which is a spectacular addition to the cookbook shelf, one that's a must for anyone who has a real interest in recipes.

● Rice, Spice And Bitter Oranges by Lila Peri (World, $6.50): If you'd enjoy a cook's tour of Spain, Portugal, Italy, Greece, North Africa, Syria, Lebanon and other Mediterranean lands, this is a most thorough food history of customs and festivals.

Recipes for a few superb specialties from each country are included.

● Cooking For Company (by the food editors of the Farm Journal, Doubleday, $6.95): Tested recipes — those tested by good home cooks — are best of all. More than 900 are included in a volume that tells the hostess how to please. Most consider time and money, and the book covers a raft of social occasions.

● The Night Before Cook-book by Paul and Leslie Rustinstein (Macmillan, $5.95): Memorable meals needn't be whipped up on the spot. As the title of this book indicates, they can be prepared in advance. Over 200 recipes, including Brazilian Rice With Chicken, Turkish Pilaff, Hungarian Veal and Mushroom Rolls, are included. Each tells what to do the night before and winds up with a "just before serving" footnote.

● Classic Sauces by Raymond Oliver (World, $7.95): The delicate art of sauce-making at which French chefs excel is the subject of this fascinating book. Master three sauces — mayonnaise, espagnole and béchamel — says the author and all the rest will follow. Recipes are given to illustrate the use of the basic sauces and their many marvelous variations.

● Myra Wadde's Chinese Cookbook (Macmillan, $5.95): The prolific and very pretty author of some 37 cookbooks is back at the range with this collection of made-in-minutes Chinese recipes. We especially like such appetizers as Chicken in Papers, Shrimp Toast, Garlic Spaghetti. There are 194 recipes, including a number from each of the great regional schools of Chinese cookery — Canton, Shanghai, Peking, Hunan and Szechwan.

● The Bachelorette Cookbook by Pauline Tai (Doubleday, $4.95): Cooking for one is much more fun after reading this book. Instead of a week of leftovers, the author's single-portion recipes provide delicious dishes for each day. Consider Shrimp Creole, Lemon Chicken or Hamburger with Vermouth Sauce. Desserts are included, too, and it's notably worthy that most recipes are not only quick but easy.

● Simple Cooking for Sophisticates by George and Virginia Elbert (Hearst Press, $5.95): If you wish they'd invent a new meat, reach for this volume and discover all the flavorfully different ways in which you can serve beef, pork, veal and poultry. This is a delightful collection of different dinners that definitely have dash.

● A World Of Curries by Ruth Philpott Collins (Funk & Wagnalls, $5.95): You can curry flavor in soup, bread, salads, sweets and drinks. And, of course, curry adds spark to eggs, meats, fish, chicken and vegetable dishes. Recipes (over 400) are included in this international collection.

● The Art of Salad Making by Carol Truak (Doubleday, $4.95): What can go into a salad? Anything and everything including meat, fish, vegetables, pasta, rice. They're all included in a volume that features such global delights as: Persian Spinach Salad, Swedish Pickled Beet Mold, Swiss Lettuce and Leek Salad and Brazilian Avocado Salad.

● The How to Keep Him (After You've Caught Him) Cookbook by Jinx Kragen and Judy Perry (Doubleday, $4.50): The authors of "Sauces and the Single Girl" are now married and in rapid order they've learned the art of keeping the "master" well-fed and happy. Their success secrets — some culled from friends — include Broiled Roquefort Tomatoes, Steak And Salami Heroes, Jay Thompson's World Renowned Curry and Beef Enchilado Casserole.

FRENCH CHILDREN love picnics. Here, in picture from "The Cooking of Provincial France," a young boy enjoys a Provencal tuna fish salad served with bread and radishes.
